Seoul to inspect domestic disruptions after Microsoft services outage

Seoul, Nov 16 : The ICT ministry here said on Monday it will inspect disruptions to domestic companies' operations following a global outage of tech giant Microsoft's services. Microsoft 365 services experienced disruptions earlier this week, with some companies in the country reporting difficulty accessing their emails on Friday.

The Ministry of Science and ICT said it plans to check the restoration of the company's services and possible damage to users in South Korea by working with Microsoft Korea, reports Yonhap news agency. It added that it will form a joint emergency response team with the company to continue monitoring the situation.

Meanwhile, Microsoft has restored its services -- ending a worldwide disruption that affected Outlook, Teams and several other Microsoft 365 applications used by businesses and consumers for more than a day. The tech company updated its service status page, which shows "all products are operational", after users across multiple countries experienced difficulty accessing email, virtual meetings and cloud-based workplace tools since Thursday.

The incident originated from a technical issue linked to a previous network capacity upgrade that was exposed following a later network change, according to the company. It also stated that the outage was not related to cyber threats or artificial intelligence systems. "We are deeply sorry for the disruption this incident has caused our customers and partners," Microsoft said in a post on social media platform X, adding that it takes customers' trust in its services extremely seriously.

According to the company, the issue primarily affected Exchange Online, the company's cloud email platform, with knock-on effects spreading to dependent services including Outlook, Teams, Microsoft 365 Copilot, SharePoint Online and Microsoft Defender XDR. Users reported difficulties accessing calendars, scheduling meetings and retrieving information through Copilot during the outage.

Astrotalk iOS app unavailable on Apple App Store, company working to restore it

New Delhi, Nov 16 : Astrology and spiritual wellness platform Astrotalk's iOS application is currently unavailable for download on Apple's App Store, with the company saying it is working to restore access, without disclosing the reason for the app's absence.

"Astrotalk is currently unavailable for download on the Apple App Store. We're working to restore its availability," a notice on the platform's website said.

The company advised iPhone users to monitor the App Store for updates and warned against downloading unofficial iOS application files or using unverified third-party links to access the service. Services are accessible through its official website, with users continuing to have access to astrology consultations via call and chat.

Though neither Astrotalk nor Apple publicly revealed why the application is unavailable, app-tracking platform StoreTally, showed the iOS application, listed as Astrotalk – Talk to Astrologer, as delisted on November 4, 2026. StoreTally records show the app was last updated on October 29, 2026.

It remains unclear whether the app was withdrawn by the developer or removed following action by Apple or due to some other reasons.

Tata Sons listing could alter group's fundamental character: Noel Tata

New Delhi, Nov 16 : Tata Trusts Chairman Noel Tata on Monday cautioned that a public listing of Tata Sons could alter the fundamental character of the Tata Group. Speaking at the HT Leadership Summit 2026, he argued that the entry of thousands of public shareholders may eventually shift the organisation's priorities away from philanthropy and long-term institution building.

The group's distinctive ownership structure had enabled it to preserve its values over generations and warned that a market listing could undermine that model, Noel said.

Tata Trusts would engage with regulators and other stakeholders to explore alternatives that safeguard the principles on which the conglomerate was built, according to him. His statement comes as differences sharpen within the Tata ecosystem over the future ownership structure of Tata Sons which is the holding company of the $165 billion Tata Group.

China facing pension funding squeeze, rising local government debt: Report

New Delhi, Nov 16 : China's economy is facing growing structural challenges, including a pension funding squeeze, rising local government debt, and weak consumer confidence, a new report said. The report from Uganda-based PML Daily said the structural problem in China's economy is evident from more workers suspending pension contributions intensifying concerns about the long-term sustainability of retirement funds.

Authorities tried to broaden participation among gig workers, a group estimated to account for a significant share of China's labour force but with relatively low enrolment in social security schemes and contribution also dropped.

The report cited a study in Shanghai, which showed the minimum combined monthly contribution, about 2,712 yuan, almost equal to the city's minimum wage of 2,740.
